Raleigh Officers' Visit, Added to King's Birthday, Gives Life to Social Week

Novelty in Entertainments on Admiral Pakenham's Flagship and Diversions for Officers Ashore.

BY SALLIE V. H. PICKETT.

NE wonders what would really have become of the week socially in Washington had not King George had a birthday anniversary and had not H. M. S. Raleigh put into port here for a visit. With these two things paramount the week has been an exceedingly interesting and different one, with something of an entertaining nature happening almost every hour for Admiral Sir William Pakenham and his officers and crew. The dinner at the British embassy last night, in honor of the king's natal day, and the reception and dance at the embassy Wednesday night made the visit of the officers seem most opportune.

The various luncheon and dinner parties on board Admiral Pakenham's flagship, the Raleigh, were of more than usual interest and his reception on the ship tomorrow afternoon will be the largest of the entertainments held there since the landing, all of those who have entertained him and his officers and many of those whom he has met being guests. There were a sufficient number of dances, including the very large one given Monday night by Mrs. Walsh, to establish the American's love of that kind of sport.

from a few days' trip on board the Mayflower was followed by many interesting patriotic ceremonies, in several of which they took part. Perhaps the most impressive of all was the presentation by M. Jusserand of the American flag which floated by the side of the French emblem from the top of the Eiffel tower June 20, 1917, and which marked the entry of this country into the world war. The flag also floated from the Arc de Triomphe to mark the arrival of the first American troops on French soil, and again it flew from Trocadero Palace in September, 1918, at the celebration of the allied victories of the Marne. It waved in France from historic points of vantage until the armistice was signed.

Most interesting by far in all of this week's program will be the garden party at the White House Wednesday, when Mrs. Harding will receive the wounded veterans of the world war in the various hospitals within reach of Washington, the entire company with the necessary at-tendants numbering fully eighteen hundred. The party is a repetition of an event of last year, which has never ceased to be the supreme topic of conversation among the men. The graciousness of Mrs. Harding-the President will receive with her-proves that at least she and her husband have not forgotten the men of America who offered themselves as a supreme sacrifice for their own and other countries.

The garden party will be carried out in every particular quite as for the formal entertainments of like nature given by Mrs. Harding, the Marine Band playing and refreshments being served from gay red and white marquees. The men who are able to walk will be given the freedom of the state suite of the White House, and those less fortunate, who request, will be carried there in their chairs, just as they were last year In fact nothing will be left undone by the chief host and hostess of the nation to prove that to them these men are still great heroes and not mere wounded men of a world melee. And again, as last year, hundreds of them will ask to see Laddie Boy, the President's Airedale pet.

Guests will begin to arrive by the middle of this week for the wedding Saturday afternoon of Miss Catherine Hughes and Mr. Chauncey Lockhart Waddell, the Secretary and Mrs. Hughes having their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Evans Hughes, both members of the wedding party, and their small family as house guests. The pilgrimage to the Bethlehem Chapel at the Episcopal Cathedral of St. Peter and Paul, and from there to the Pan-American Union building, will afford hundreds of interested citizens an opportunity to glimpse the bride and her party, and a more charming route of travel would be hard to find than that through Woodley lane or the other pretty highways leading into the capital from the chapel.

The President and Mrs. Harding's daughter of the Secretary of State and Mrs. Hughes, who will marry Mr. Chauncey Lockhart Waddell next Saturday, is one of the most interesting she has received. The gift is a pair of bedspreads of unbleached muslin covered with a pattern of knotted candle wicking and edged with deep hard-tied fringe. The design of roses, shamrocks and thistles is the oldest found in the North Carolina mountains, and was probably brought to this country during the Uister immigration about 150 years ago. This pattern, typifying England, Ireland and Scotland, was found on a spread more than a hundred years old, and Miss Hughes' spreads are copies of it.

Mrs. Harding purchased the spreads from the Southern Industrial Education Association, of which she is from the Southern Industrial Education Association, of which she is honorary president. The association was organized about seventeen years ago, and the exchange was started here by Mrs. A. S. Stone thirteen years ago. Through this association the mountaineers of the south are being educated for industrial independence, and the articles sold by the exchange are made in the mountain cabins, mostly by women who have no other means of contact with the outside world.
